

Looking for a place to learn English in a fun and inspiring environment.

The Fitzroy Learning Centre provides a complete literacy programme and upon its completion, excellence in English.

It is important to understand how the English language goes about representing its spoken language in written form. In English, when we write, we write the sounds we speak; when we read, we speak the sounds we see. We do this by means of the sounds that have been attributed to the letters of the alphabet.

The alphabet is a sound code. Students need to learn how the sound code works. Since English is based on this alphabetic method of coding, the logical way to decode (read) is to teach the learner the appropriate speech sounds with which to respond when presented with the written letters. To the stimulus prompts supplied by the sight of the letters, sound responses are given. These are the sounds of speech. Taught this way learning English is effective, engrossing and fun.

What is phonics teaching? Phonics teaching means teaching the English speech sounds that have been given, by convention, to the 26 letters of the alphabet and the regular patterns of letter combinations (which are technically called digraphs).

Our Teachers start their day with a mission to instill a love of reading and lifelong learning in children.
